Postcard Game

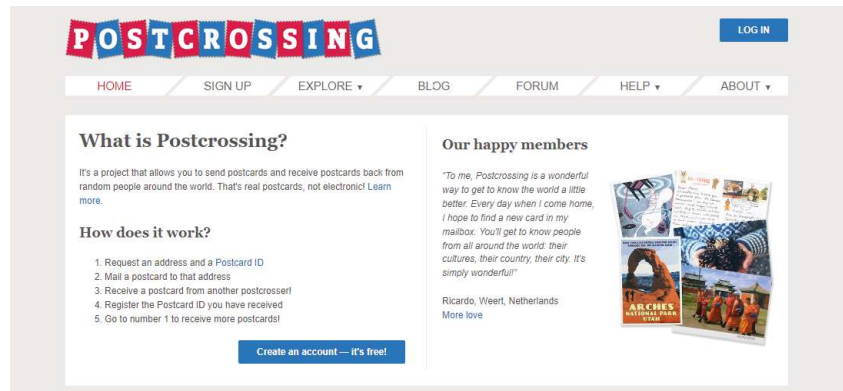

RULES

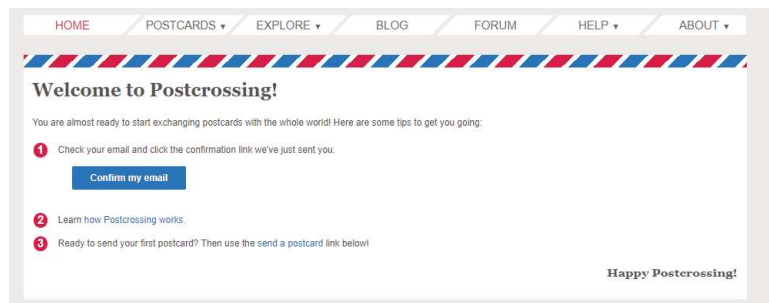

Welcome to the Postcard Game! Ready to send an old fashion postcard and try you luck? First of all, read the postcard lay-out to know what the game is about! You can find it on the Stylos-site

Here is how it works:

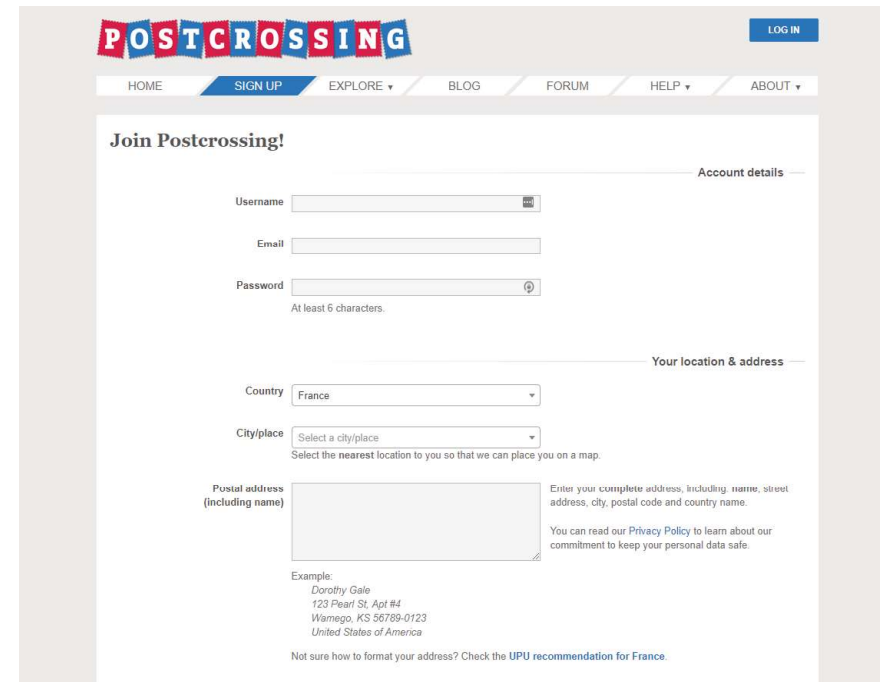

Lorem ipsum

1. Go on the Postcrossing site:
<https://www.postcrossing.com/>

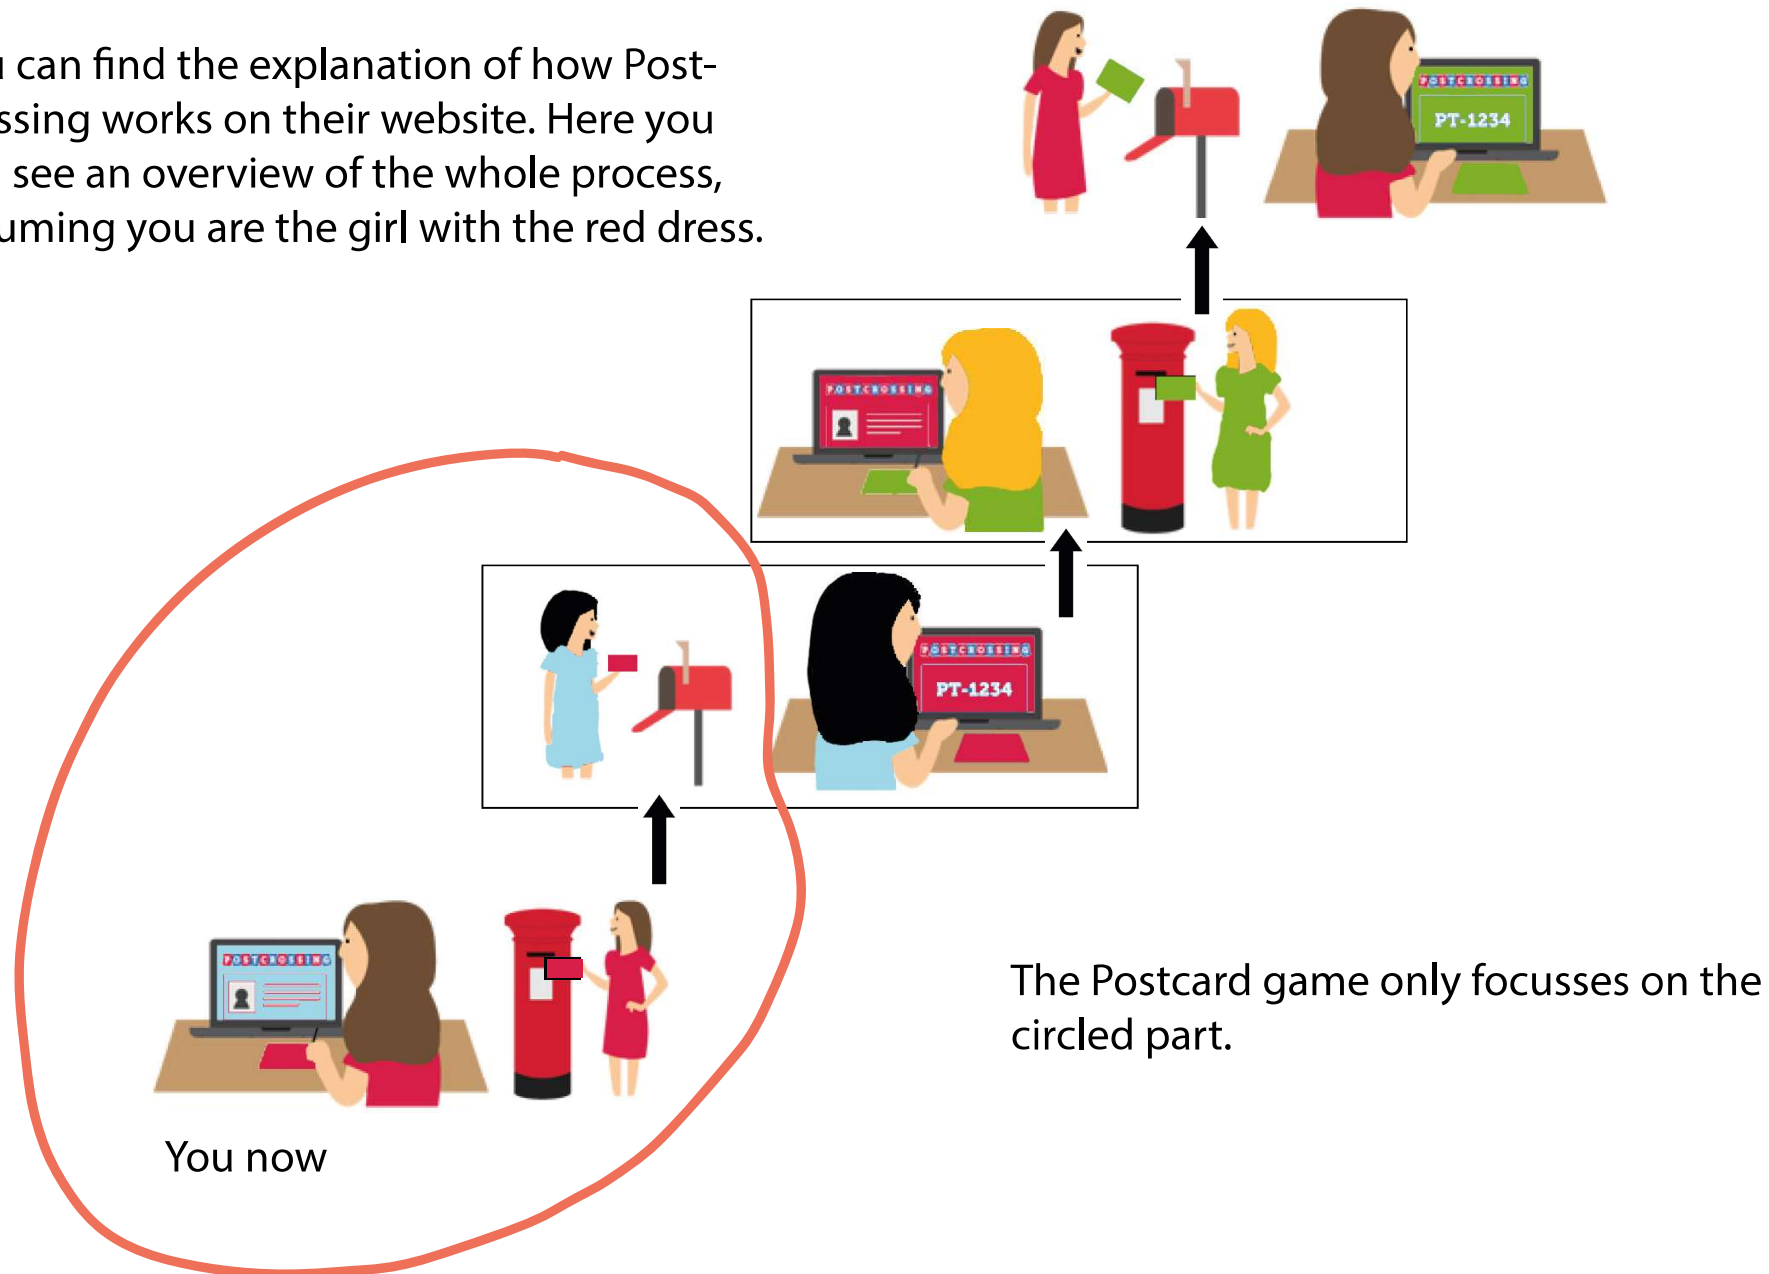

2. Create an account

3. Confirm your email and send a postcard link so you can generate a receiver who you will send your postcard to.

HOW DOES IS WORK?

You can find the explanation of how Postcrossing works on their website. Here you can see an overview of the whole process, assuming you are the girl with the red dress.

THE POSTCARD

4. Print the Postcard layout in duplex - in color and on thick paper y preference. You can find it on the Stylos site.
5. Fill the gaps in with your the name of the receiver, your email and your own name
6. Put the card in an enveloppe, write the adress of the receiver on it.
7. Have it stamped for the country of the receiver and post it.

Hi (name receiver)

What do you think the buildings have more of ?

WELLE oder Winkel ?

I am a student at the faculty of Architecture and the Built Environment in Delft, Netherlands. We were supposed to go on an Architecture Rally organised by the student association. Because of the pandemic we unfortunately have to postpone our travel. But in the meantime a Postcrossing game has been organised: The contestant who's receiver lives the nearest of the cities we are going to visit - wins! As you can guess, I decided to participate. Do you recognise any of these buildings? Maybe you can make me win! Therefore, I need a picture of this postcard to prove I actually sent it.

Could you please send one to my e-mail?

e-mail: (your e-mail)

As a thank you, I will be happy to send you the pdf-guide of the Rally, so you could do it as well- if you don't live to far away!

Thank you in advance!

(your name)

Hear from you soon!

And now... Just be patient! The winner will receive a good-buy for tasteful delicacies from Delft!

Thank you for participating!
